Air Force launches new AFSC

By Tech. Sgt. Mark Diamond Air Mobility Command Public Affairs

SCOTT AIR FORCE BASE, Ill. -- The Air Force will introduce new Air Force specialty codes for mobility pilots and navigators Saturday.

The new codes will replace the airlift "A" and tanker "T" with the new "M," said Col. John Clatanoff, chief of Air Mobility Command's operations and training division.

All airlift and tanker pilots and navigators and their position authorizations will get new codes, Colonel Clatanoff said.

The conversion will automatically convert current codes to their new equivalent.

The change also creates a separate code for C-130J Hercules pilots. Because of the J model's unique characteristics, the new code will differentiate between C-130J pilots and pilots who fly other C-130 variants, he said.

A ction Line

The Action Line provides a direct line of communication between Col. Jonathan George, 7th Bomb Wing commander, and the people of Dyess. As a general rule, people should use their chain of command or contact the agency involved first, however, if you are not satisfied, call 696-3355 or e-mail action@dyess.af.mil and leave your message. Leaving your name and phone number ensures you will receive a personal reply by phone. The Peacemaker staff reserves the right to edit all incoming Action Lines before publication. Not all Action Lines may be published.

Praise for security forces

I recently drove through the main gate during the 100-percent identification checks. When I showed my identification to the security forces member, I noticed it was a second lieutenant. Clearly this young officer understands that "leading by example" can often serve as a very strong positive influence to the people under his command. My compliments to both the lieutenant and the other security forces personnel that do this very tough job on a daily basis!

COACH'S CORNER

Once again we have a team of professionals who proved they live up to the Air Force standard of excellence in all we do. The 7th Medical Group finished their JCAHO inspection and scored an overall excellent. This inspection couldn't have come at a worse time for the 7th MDG -- they were busy reviewing records for our ORE, they have several of their key folks deployed and they are constantly providing healthcare to us, our families and the retired AF community. Yet, they persevered through this adversity, pulled together as a team and won.

Over the past two weeks we've had great examples of winners, last week we had the 7th AMXS and this week 7th MDG. Right now, Team Dyess has the chance to be winners. As we complete this ORE and gear up for the next one, let's continue pull together as a team and win. We have the tools for excellence, now we just need to put them to use.

Pay tribute to the 'ripples' -- unsung mentors

By Lt. Col. (Dr.) Victor Folarin

7th Aeromedical/Dental Squadron commander

I remember throwing pebbles into ponds when I was younger and getting fascinated by the ripples generated as they emanated from the center, growing as they expanded outward.

Do you recall doing the same?

The pebble kind of drops and the ripples begin, but if you did not see the pebble drop, all you will see are the ripples as they enlarge.

Thinking about this in light of mentoring reminds me of the unsung mentors in everyone's life.

Who was present at the birth of a child?

Who beamed with joy and happiness, took you home, and worried when you cried or seemed to be in discomfort, even before you were able to express yourself?

Who taught and showed you the facts of life and had many aspirations for you before you even knew there were things to aspire to?

Who taught you right from wrong and ensured that you grew up to be what you became today?

Who taught you morals and gave you values that have helped you overcome numerous temptations?

Air Force Policy Directive 36-34 is all about mentorship. It defined a mentor as "a trusted counselor and guide."

Who was your trusted counselor and guide through your turbulent, bittersweet formative years, from the moment you learned to talk to the moment you went to daycare, if you did, and then on to pre-kindergarten, kindergarten, elementary, middle and high school?

Who did you turn to when you were faced with tough decisions such as joining the military, and who encouraged you when you needed encouraging, cried with you or gave you a shoulder to cry on when you needed one?

Who chastised you when you needed it, and told you it was done out of love and interest in your growth and

Did I bring back some memories?

Go ahead and think about all those mentoring sessions you had, some of which you sometimes called preaching, especially in your teenage years when you thought you knew everything

It all started with our parents, the core of the ripple, then it expanded into our families, beginning with our immediate family members, brothers and sisters.

Then it grew out to our extended families, grandparents who let you get away with what your parents wouldn't when they were growing up, uncles, cousins, aunts and others

As you basked in the comforts and assurance of all this support, the ripples extended out to your community, your church, synagogue, mosque, playmates at school, teachers, principals, friends and beyond.

Then, as you become more enriched with mentors, you felt ready to take on more ripples of mentors from your job, in your contacts and in your daily activities. Thus, the ripples enlarged until it seems to have no end.

Who laid the foundations for all these? Parents.

They are the unsung mentors that are often taken for granted or that we did not even think of as mentors because it was all so natural.

Yes, they made it easier for us, commanders and supervisors, to mentor you and become part of your ripples as we promulgate and encourage you to adopt our Air Force core values

For some, it is easier because there was a flawless foundation already laid. For others, it is a little harder, but we cannot give up on the challenge.

Here is to all the beginning ripples -- the foundation layers -- the unsung mentors.

Now is the time to step out and lead

By Lt. Col. Steven Hiss 436th Training Squadron commander

Do you recognize these

Do you recognize these words? "Now we are engaged in a great war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

"But in a larger sense.

we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have hallowed it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here.

"It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us -- that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion -- that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain, that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Have you figured out who said these words? Maybe adding the speaker's first sentence will help.

"Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

ual." Of course, these are Abraham Lincoln's words in November 1863 while dedicating the national cemetery in Gettysburg, Penn.

Back then, our nation -- our very way of life -- faced an uncertain future, albeit from an internal conflict. Today, we face an external enemy who also threatens our core beliefs -- life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Now, more than ever, our nation needs leadership -- personal, family, community, military, political and diplomatic. I challenge you to step out and lead.

From education to recognition, door to opportunity always labeled 'push'

By Chief Master Sgt.

Doug Hodge65th Air Base Wing command chief

LAJES FIELD, Azores -- Finance guru Tom Peters was right when he said, "If a window of opportunity appears, don't pull down the shade."

For those of us serving in the Air Force, the sun shines brightly through a very large window. It overlooks many different prospects for change, promotion and advancement. From education to recognition, the door to opportunity is always labeled 'push.'

I've been fortunate to see many opportunities over the course my own career.

Those same opportunities are available to you without discrimination. How close are you to a CCAF associate's degree?

Meanwhile, training opportunities abound. Have you attended the First-Term Airman Center class? Have you gotten Airman Leadership School out of the way? When are you headed to the NCO Academy?

Sometime after you read this, look at the jobs available to you on the EQUAL Plus list. How many will you find?

The Air Force needs more people to look at the big picture -- to look for assignments that may not necessarily turn a wrench or march a patrol. Is that you?

Or will you just be filling the squares you believe need filling?

To round out your view out this window of opportunity, seek and engage the hundreds of volunteer openings at your base.

There is so much more. The education counselors, career adviser supervisors, first sergeants and others are your first stop to pushing the door open.

As we continue our mission, remember to leave the shade up on the window of opportunity that's open to you.

Dyess continues battle against foreign object damage

By 2nd Lt. Derek Molloy

7th Operations Support Squadron

While Dyess B-1s have been fighting the war on terrorism for over two years now, a group of former Air Force maintainers has been fighting a war at Dyess for over 17 years -- a war against Foreign Object Damage.

According to the Wing Safety Office, FOD has inflicted more damage on the Dyess B-1 fleet than the entire collection of our nation's formal enemies, making FOD the B-1s number-one adver-

"A single piece of FOD can completely destroy a $6 million engine and cripple an aircraft," said Sergeant Forster. "More than the loss of an aircraft is the possible loss of lives that can be much more devastating."

Even the smallest piece of FOD has the potential to cripple a multi-million dollar aircraft. Most recently, a small metal wire has been the culprit for two B-1 FOD incidents, which cost the Air Force more than $93,000.

To prevent such potential FOD disasters, Dyess has already undertaken some "aggressive" measures and is beginning new initiatives that focus its efforts in the battle to eliminate FOD.
